BISHOP POTTER NOT PRESENT

Bishop Tuttle Expresses Gratitude Over Present Conditions in Ctab-Praises War Record of State.

The Salt Lake Theater was crowded last night from the ground floor to the second gallery and many people stood up to witness the religious exercises of the Episcopal church and to hear some eminent divines of that organization There was marked disappointment over the absence of Bishop Potter, which, as explained by Bishop Leonard, was due to the latter's necessity of going back to Ogden yesterday afternoon in order to secure accomodations to the coast. A letter from him was read in which he expressed the intention of spending a Sabbath in Salt Lake on his return from San Francisco, when he would be pleased to address the people of this

Those who spoke last night were Bishop Gailor of Tennessee, the Lord Bishop of Newcastle, England; Bishop Dudley of Kentucky, and Bishop Tuttle of St. Louis. These gentlemen spoke of the origin of the Protestant Episcopal church and endeavored to explain what that church stands for. Bisnop Leonard presided over the services and after the opening exercises he extended a cordial wicome to the visiting clergymen. In his introductory remarks he said he would divide the basis of Christian work into three propo-

First, that the great principles of nodern civilization and the develop-nent of our institutions rest upon Christian principles and Christian truths; second, that more and more through the mists of time we have come to understand that the whole battle was fought about the person of Jesus Christ: and third, that it is impossible in the history of the Christian gospel and its influence in the world to understand fully and completely the work of Christ without an understanding of that historical institution which He founded and which has come down to our own time, and in which we believe when we say, I believe in the holy Catholic

BISHOP GAILOR'S REMARKS. Bishop Gailor began his remarks by saying that it was hard to talk about the Episcopal church because there never was an institution more misunderstood. But he affirmed that the Episcopal church is in sympathy with modern institutions the church stood for liberty. He said that the interests of nations interplay and intermingle as never before in the world's history. Individualism passing and institutions are taking its place. Bishop Gallor went on to explain the aims and purposes of the Episcopal church.

BISHOP OF NEWCASTLE TALKS. The next speaker was the Right Reverend Lord Bishop Jacobs of Newcas-tle, who said that he visited Utah eighyears ago, and at that time he little thought that eighteen years hence he would address as Bishop of Newcas-tle, the magnificent audience that confronted him. He said that the message of the Episcopal church was simply repentance and the remission of sins. This is the message, he said, that every member of his church was in duty bound to take to the nations of the

He said further that the Christian gospel is the mortal dynamic of the world, that is that the love of God was the force that moved men to righteous-

RISHOP DUDLEY'S REMARKS

Bishop Dudley of Kentucky proved to a speaker of superior abil-and was listened to very closely. He said that the Epis-copal church stood for liberty. It did not set up a cast-iron standard of morals for men to conform to, because temptations are not alike to all men. While his son might be tempted by the music of the dance, it would have no temptation for him no matter how sweet the music, polished the floor or how beautiful the woman. But perhaps in a few days hence, in San Francisco, when parties were arranged, when one man or another had his purpose to then he would be tempted so sorely that it would require all his strength

BISHOP TUTTLE SPEAKS As Bishop Tuttle stepped to the front of the stage he was greeted with loud applause, indicating that the good man is still close in the affections of the ple of Salt Lake. He said he glad to see so many prominent bishops sent and asked them if they cou find anywhere in America or England : more appreciative, attentive or rever-ential audience than the one they were facing. "And," he added, "may I tell these friends that we are Methodists, and that we are Presbyterians, and that we are Baptists, and that we are Luerans, and that we are Hebrews, and that we are Latter-day Saints, who came more than fifty years ago and under the severest strain of hardship founded this city whose kind hospitality we are now enjoying. We are all sorts and con-ditions of men gathered here tonight, and yet are we not in the unity of spirit, and the bond of peace, and I hope righteousness of life, well? "Utah has at last, as the forty-fifth state of the union, taken her stand in walking under the flag and after the flag and ready to defend the flag. want proof of that? Search military annals of this war with Spain and find what the Utah contingent, especially as represented by the Utah battery, stood for in the fighting days of the last war, and then make up your minds whether Utah is marching loy-ally and lovingly keeping step to the of the union. (Applause.) 'And so will you not cance back thank God that these United States, represented by their government Washington, had the wisdom, the tience and long-suffering forbear-ance not to force matters to any heroic sort of issue, and not to take the torch and kindle the inflammable materials of fanatical earnestness and of conviction of their rights for religious liberty under the Constitution, that beat in the hearts of the people who lived here?

"And shall we not also thank God that the people here who manufactured ghout this region where we stand, also had the patience and for-bearance to wait and wait and wait? And so patience and long-suffering and | Bagnell, Mo.

forbearance under Cod's providence, and under the good sense of the American people, and I may say truly the good sense of the "Mormon" people, finally solved the difficult problem. None of you know how difficult it was except we who lived here for twenty years in the past. And the problem was solved without one ounce of blood-shed. Thank God for that." Bishop Tuttle closed by saying that the Episcopal church stood for vidual righteousness and personal holiss and not to ask too many ques tions about things of which everyone must have his own individual opinion He also said that the man and the wonan who would not come to church and yet did all the good they could show by their actions that they possess the Holy Spirit within them, and added: "Who are you and I that we dare say to them, you do not come to church and therefore stand thou there. We go to charch, and therefore we will sit here." In short, he said the Episcolal church wants to help people try to do what Woolseley said to Cromwell, "Let all the ends you aim at by yours God's your country's and truth's.

SERMON AT ST. MARK'S. Bishop Tuttle Makes an Interesting

Reminiscent Address. Bishop Tuttle was the speaker at the St. Mark's cathedral yesterday mornand he had an audience to talk to that crowded the auditorium to overflowing. His remarks, which were closely followed, were in part as fol-

"It has fallen to my luck to preac! before so many of my old friends,"
"I see before me the dear faces which remind me of those who have passed into the great beyond. To stand where for fifteen years I stood among those whom I had learned to ove so much, is, indeed, a blessed privilege, and this occasion is made man more pleasurable to me inasmuch as it brings me into contact with so many leading spirits of our church from all parts of the country. "When I first came to Salt Lake the mother church in England sent me between £700 and £800 with which to spread the good work, but the first large gift was from a Presbyterian of St. Louis, who sent $1,000. We mad our first start in a bowling all of the Walker house and on July 16, 1867, I confirmed my first class of twenty-one in Independence hall, the build-ing now occupied as a school for

You all know the history of our trials and struggles from that time until we dedicated this fine cathedral, and how nobly, through love, law, faith and morality. our efforts have been crowned with success. Just the same as a horse, according to the Scriptures, is a vain thing to save man, so are love and faith. But it is not the gun which is a power of strength and force it is the man behind the gun. It was not for the reason of her being a queen that commanded the respect and admiration for Victoria. The beautiful qualities of her womanly nature com pelled the whole world to love her." Bishop Tuttle concluded with a warm eulogy of the late President McKinley.

CHILDREN'S GATHERING.

Large Body of Little Ones at St

Paul's Cathedral. The members of the six Episcopal Sunday schools of the city gathered to St. Paul's church yesterday afternoon to hear Bishop Hare and Rev. Dr. yd. The music was furnished by Paul's Sunday school choir. The services were begun by prayer led by Rev. Millidge Waiker, after which Bishop Hare of Dakota was introduced by Bishop Leonard. The former commanded the close attention of the children by reciting interesting Indian stories all of which had a moral to them, which he endeal, upon the little ones.

The choir rendered a song, after which Dr. Lloyd of New York, general secretary of the Episcopal missions.

The complithem, which he endeavored to impress talked to the children. He compli-mented the latter upon their liberal contributions to the mission fund they had made in the past and endeavore to point out to them the good that they were accomplishing in the world.

After a few remarks by Bishop Leon-rd the services were closed. Bishop ard the services were closed. Bis Hare pronouncing the benediction.

FORGING TO THE FRONT.

The Chipman Mercantile Co., of American Fork are quietly forging to the front among the ranks of the best mercantile houses in the West. The the Utah National Bank, and who is also president of the Chipman Mercan-tile Co., and sole owner of the bank of American Fork, commenced business in 1973 on a small scale in a frame shack. Through his wise and careful business management he has schooled his sons in the same line of work, and his business has grown right along until 1892, when the firm was no more known as James Chipman, but the Chipman Mer-cantile Co. They have erected some spacious brick and stone buildings, and have their business arranged in departnents Every department, viz., grocery, hardware, clothing store, dry goods, harness and lumber yard, is filled and running over with good things, and bargains can be found on every hand. They have a ground floor space of 80x210 feet, and therefore have excellent facilities for lisplaying goods. In connection with their mercantile business, they have one of the largest lumber yards and flour roller mills south of Salt Lake City. Their trade is not confined to Utah, but extends through Idaho, Mon-iana, Nevada and Colorado. They have thirty-five to forty regular hands and handle a great deal of merchandise in a year's time. They run close to the quarter of a million mark last year, and expect to our reach it this year. The reason they have such an extended trade and handle so much merchandise is due to the fact of their willingness sell on such a small margin; also the fair and honest treatment they give to their customers. They are satisfied to do a great deal of work for a small profit. They have recently put in the latest cash and package carrier system in the state, and are well equipped for doing business right and prompt ple who contemplate visiting confer ence would save money by stopping off a day in American Fork, and visit the various departments of this mammoth up to date business house. Those who cannot stop off would do well to write them for price lists.

WESTERN STOCK MARKET.

Special Correspondence. Kansas City Stock Yards, Sept. 26 .-The combination of high corn and low cattle has been the cause of much figuring since crop returns have reached a point at which reliable estimates can made and at the present price of feeders, the merging of the two into a high priced beef commodity has begun to look like a money making proposi-tion. The 950 to 1,100 pound feeders have advanced during the past week. but the 650 to 900 pound offerings have been overlooked and neglected. To a man up a tree, it looks like a good time to get in and take some of the light weight stuff to rough through and have on hand as ready for use next Yes, next fall is some time off but unless all signs fail, the man who is fixed to take a fiyer on light cattle and doesn't do it will be sorry when he tries to buy in a year from now. Corn fat cattle continue at the highest range of the year and talk about "seven dollar cattle" is not looked upon as such a far off probability as the uninitiated might suspect. Grass beeves were well received all week if fat, but the light or medium flesh cattle were slow sale. Range cows were strong early in the week but heavy receipts caused prices to settle slightly towards the close. Dry lot cows and heifers advanced with fat steers. There was a $6.30 top to the fat cattle market on both Wednesday and Thursday, Thursday's top having been paid for a string of 118 western steers that averaged 1,428 pounds.

Southern division there were about 9,000 cattle about 9,000 cattle received, against 7,500 for the week before. Prices ranged steady all week on an active market, with steer values at $2.65 to $3.65, with no good qualities offered, and cows going at $2.10 to $3.00. Veal calves were not as high as during the previous week but the best lots realized $5.50 per 100 weight.

Interest in the coming American Royal cattle show and sale, which is to take place in Kansaas City, October 21st to 26th, continues to increase, and Secy. Chas. R. Thomas declares it will be the biggest event of the kind that was ever pulled off in the country.

In spite of the strenuous efforts of the packers, hog values went to the highest point of the season on Wednesday, when the top price paid was $7.121/2 for some prime heavy hogs. Mixed and medium weights sold at $6.70 to $7.10; lights at $6.20 to $6.95, and desirable pigs at $5.00 to $6.10. There was slight settling of prices on Thursday but the consensus of opinion is that values will go still higher. With cattle and hog quotations at the exceptional heights to which they have attained it seems inconsistent to report a declining mutton market but the range marketing has begun in earnest and puts packers in a some-what dictatorial position. They want mutton but succeed in securing it at the lowest range of the year. Receipts were the heaviest of the season during the past week. Sheep were held over from day to day early in the week but the close of the week's business finds the yards practically clear. clined 10 to 20 cents, choice lambs having sold at $3.75 to $4.25 on Thursday, and prime Utah wethers at $3.10 to $3.30. Country buyers had a good opportunity to fill orders and availed themselves of it at prices ranging from $2.50 to $2.85 for wethers and $3.00 to $3,25 for lambs. Ewes closed at $2.40 to $2.75 for killers, and $2.90 to $2.50 for stockers. The packing demand contin-ues and the market is in good condi-tion, but there is little encouragement for higher prices until the fall rush shall cease. Receipts of live stock for the past week were 67,000 cattle, 47,000 hogs and 29,500 sheep, against 43,690 cattle, 37,100 hogs and 21,900 sheep for the previous
